About GoGMI

The Gulf of Guinea Maritime Institute (GoGMI) is a non-profit 'think-tank' for maritime strategic thinkers, practitioners and allies to interact, share ideas and research into strategic maritime affairs affecting the Gulf of Guinea (GoG) region. The Institute's core business is strategic maritime research, consultancy and advocacy in the areas of safety, security and environment in the Ghanaian and the Gulf of Guinea Maritime space at large. The primary objective of GoGMI is to produce recognised research and provide solutions from an indigenous perspective, thereby addressing the current imbalance in the region's maritime studies, where local opinions and interests are underrepresented.

Why Become a Member?

Members of the Gulf of Guinea Maritime Institute are part of an equally dynamic and global community, contributing to stimulating dialogues and policy innovation aimed at addressing the Gulf of Guinea region's dynamic ocean governance and maritime safety challenges of the 21st century. The Institute together with its members build consensus to advance ocean governance solutions. Membership's three pillars – connect, build, impact – represent our guiding philosophy and the benefits that our members receive. As a member, you will receive invitations to the Institute's exclusive meetings including high-level forums and briefings plus access to member-only publications from experts and thought leaders on analysis of strategic maritime issues in the Gulf of Guinea region.
